Zusammenfassung der Befunde

[LOW] No provenance attestation

Analysator: provenance

Package has no build provenance attestation. Cannot verify the source of the build.

Angriffsszenario:

Without provenance, there is no link between source code and published artifact:
    - Maintainer's machine could be compromised, injecting code at publish time
    - No proof the tarball was built from the repository's source
    - Provenance (SLSA) proves: built by GitHub Actions from commit X of repo Y
    - Check: npm audit signatures --registry https://registry.npmjs.org
```

Behebung:

Prefer packages with build provenance. For critical dependencies, manually verify that the published tarball matches the source code in the repository.

[MEDIUM] Suspicious pattern: process.env access

Analysator: tarball-analysis

File "bin/bootstrap.js" contains a suspicious pattern (process.env access) that may indicate malicious behavior.

[MEDIUM] Suspicious pattern: process.env access

Analysator: tarball-analysis

File "src/commands/update/utilities/cli-version.js" contains a suspicious pattern (process.env access) that may indicate malicious behavior.

[MEDIUM] Suspicious pattern: process.env access

Analysator: tarball-analysis

File "src/utilities/color.js" contains a suspicious pattern (process.env access) that may indicate malicious behavior.

[MEDIUM] Suspicious pattern: process.env access

Analysator: tarball-analysis

File "src/utilities/config.js" contains a suspicious pattern (process.env access) that may indicate malicious behavior.

[HIGH] Suspicious pattern: exec/spawn call

Analysator: tarball-analysis

File "src/commands/mcp/devserver.js" contains a suspicious pattern (exec/spawn call) that may indicate malicious behavior.

[MEDIUM] Suspicious pattern: base64 decode

Analysator: tarball-analysis

File "src/commands/mcp/tools/doc-search.js" contains a suspicious pattern (base64 decode) that may indicate malicious behavior.

[MEDIUM] Suspicious pattern: process.env access
